Biography

I'm a Staten Island based composer, record producer, and multi-instrumentalist who specializes in film scoring. I have collaborated with creatives all over the world on various projects for films, video games, podcasts, and audiobooks.

My musical journey officially began at the age of 6 with my first guitar lesson. In addition to 10 years of studying guitar, I was formally trained in percussion and violin.

Throughout elementary school, high school, and college I played in various local ensembles and rock bands in New York City. This led me to my first recording studio session at the age of 15. The experience had a profound effect on me, and soon after, I was obsessed with recording.

In 2018, I founded Bay Terrace Records, an international record label, publisher, and management company. We caught the attention of the Swedish/Australian band, Tiny Fighter. With Bay Terrace Records, Tiny Fighter released two albums, one EP, and six singles, which have amassed hundreds of thousands of streams. We also helped organize Tiny Fighter's North American tour, which included shows in Toronto and New York.

That same year, writer/director John Rizzo, asked me if I could record original music for his upcoming film (Chess & Chagrin). That was when my love for storytelling and record producing met. Since then, I have dedicated most of my musical efforts on composing for different mediums.
